Acknowledgements

I am indebted to many people in writing this thesis. First of all, I would like to thank my supervisor Prof. Harald Uhlig for his encouragement, his support and numerous comments. Moreover, I greatly benefited from our joint project (Chapter 4 of this thesis). Furthermore, I thank my second examiner Prof. Michael Burda for many valuable comments during seminar presentations.

During the time of writing this thesis, I have benefited from discussions with colleagues at the Institute of Economic Policy at Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin. I would like to thank Mathias Trabandt, Christian Stoltenberg, Emanuel Mönch, Stefan Ried and Mirko Wiederholt for many helpful suggestions. I am especially indebted to Georg Man for his assistance with the computational facilities.

I also benefited from comments during seminar and conference presentations in Berlin, New York, Venice, Los Angeles, Stockholm, Vigo, Mannheim and Dresden. In particular Chapter 2 of this thesis was greatly improved by suggestions from Thomas Sargent, José-Víctor Ríos-Rull, Timothy Kehoe and David Backus.

Parts of this thesis were written during my stay at New York University. I would like to thank Thomas Sargent for inviting me. Moreover, I am indebted to Harald Uhlig who strongly supported my research stay.

I am grateful to the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft for providing generous financial support for the research reported in this thesis.

I am indebted to Stefan Ried, Emanuel Mönch, Christian Stoltenberg, Carsten Trenkler and Ralf Brüggemann for carefully proofreading this text and pointing out many errors. A special thanks goes to Ralf: without his extraordinary knowledge in \LaTeX the layout of this thesis would not have been the same.

Last but not least I would like to thank my friends and my family for all their support. I am particularly indebted to Ralf for his continuous encouragement and support and to our son Anton who makes me laugh every day.
