The Shaker Publishing <<http://www.shaker.eu/>> monograph series of Books in Comparative Culture, Media, and Communication Studies publishes single-authored and edited volumes on topics in the widest definition of the study culture. The intellectual orientation of the series is based upon the field of comparative cultural studies where tenets of the discipline of cultural studies are merged with tenets of the fields of comparative literature, communication studies, and media studies. This intellectual trajectory means that the study of culture, its processes, and its products — including aspects and perspectives of media, communication, the visual arts, theater, film, photography, literature, as well as cultural perspectives of themes and topics in the fields of sociology, political science, cultural anthropology, history, intellectual history, philosophy, etc. — is performed in a contextual and relational manner and with a plurality of methods and approaches and in inter- and multi-disciplinarity. In comparative cultural studies it is the processes of communicative action(s) in culture and the how of these processes that constitute the main objectives of research and study. However, comparative cultural studies does not exclude textual analysis proper or other established fields of study whereby "text" is defined in its widest possible representations. In comparative cultural studies, ideally, the framework of and methodologies available in the contextual approach of the systemic and empirical study of culture are favored. Editor of the series is Steven Tötösy de Zepetnek.

Volumes published in the series are:

The New Central and East European Culture. Ed. Steven Tötösy de Zepetnek, Carmen Andraş, and Magdalena Marsovszky
